WEEKLY NEW ERA.

SUPPLEMENT.

MR. DEPEW'S PRIVATE CAR.

No Frits Outside and No End of Comfort and Elegance in the Interior.

A glance into Chauncey M. Depew's private traveling car shows that the railroad magnate lives in comfort and elegance while on the road. Something like $40,000 was expended in making this palace on wheels one of the best specimens of the car-builder's art possible. Mr. Depew takes his annual tours over the railroad systems of the country in this car, and recently he traveled about 10,000 miles, going twice across the continent, and when the car was turned over to the inspectors at the end of the journey for an overhauling not a nut or screw was found loose or out of order, and all that was necessary to prepare the car for another journey was to sweep and dust it.

Mr. Depew is not a great lover of glitter and tinsel, and hence the exterior of his car is not particularly attractive. When he travels, he doesn't care to have the people of wayside stations where he may chance to stop looking about and staring in at the windows to see what great man has come to town, and so the exterior of the car presents about the same appearance as other palace cars of the Wagner company. One has to explore the interior to find luxury, comfort and elegance.

The car is 74 feet long, and is fitted with Westinghouse airbrakes, a whistle signal service to the engineer, steam heat and an instrument which records the speed of the car. The indicator has often registered 85 miles an hour.

At the rear of the car is the observatory section. It is a small room, luxuriously upholstered and furnished with easy chairs done in heavy plush. Large windows on the sides and rear give a complete view of the passing scenery. Next in order come the staterooms. These, in reality, are bedrooms, they are so large and commodious. They are three in number and contain full sized beds. Mr. Depew never sleeps in a berth when traveling, and the room he occupies would almost swallow two of the cubby holes called rooms in some New York flats. Each room is supplied with hot and cold water and electric call bells. The draperies and decorations are fit for a Fifth Avenue house.

A narrow hallway runs along the front of these bedrooms and leads to the main saloon. This is also the dining room. It is about 15 feet long and the width of the car. The woodwork is solid mahogany throughout. An immense French plate glass at the end of the saloon gives the compartment the appearance of being much larger than it really is. The windows are double to keep out the dust. In one corner, by the great mirror, is a secretary, supplied with stationery and telegraph blanks, and above it is a compartment for books. This holds railroad manuals, reports of the interstate commerce and the state railroad commissions, and other books of that character for the convenience of Mr. Depew. The windows are hung with heavy silk curtains, and the easy chairs are of plush and velvet. Around the center table from four to six persons may dine in comfort.

Next to the main saloon is a small section room with berths for use in emergencies, and then comes the porter's room, which is as well furnished almost as a stateroom in the average sleeping car. Beyond are the kitchen and pantry, where Mr. Depew's own cook prepares all his meals while traveling. The kitchen is supplied with all the appliances necessary to a model kitchen. —New York Sun.

A Russian Blizzard.

The hurricane blizzards of the winter of 1900-1901, which did all that it could, fastidiously unprepared for such a storm. The sharp, fiercely driven snow points pained and almost blinded us, the prolonged trudge exhausted us, worn out by toil, constantly falling into drifts from which we each time rose with increasing difficulty. The frequent stoppages when, in pitch darkness, we attempted with frozen hands to adjust the harness still more bungled us. Then, again, the poor Russian peasants with us kept loudly bemoaning their fate, saying we should all be dead before morning. They would try to lag behind, and wanted to give in, lie down and pray.

We English, while equally knowing that it was an occasion for prayer, thought we should be more worthy of having our prayers answered if we used for our preservation such powers, mental and physical, as had been granted to us. There may, indeed, have been moments when the evil temptation also came to some of us to abandon the struggle; and here I must admit that the one among us who by his cheerfulness, calm courage, aid to the falling and fertility of resource most inspired us with hope when we began to despair, and to whose guidance we mainly owed our lives, had a large admixture of Polish blood in his veins. Even he, however, admitted, when we were safe, that his only hope throughout had been that we were by chance going in the right direction.

The constant hand-to-hand struggles with our horses, which literally covered before the blizzards, endeavoring to avoid them by turning round, probably were headlong, as tending to keep up our circulation. —Blackwood's Magazine.

Pullman Car Names.

George M. Pullman does the pretty fairy story about his daughter, who was said to give names to all the Pullman palace cars and draw a salary of $10,000 therefor. To a "St. Louis" reporter he said the other day: "My daughter never named a car that I know of, and most certainly did not draw the $10,000 salary. I have named several cars, but was never paid for my services. The cars are named in the office. It was a pretty story lacking only the little feature of truth." Mr. Pullman's own private car has been his traveling home for 20 years, and every president since Lincoln has ridden in it.
